Intended audience:
Inpatient RNs

Quality-of-life assessment tools, such as patient reported outcome measures (PROMs), are developed to capture quality-of-life information directly from patients. However, a knowledge gap exists regarding valid interpretations of quality-of-life assessment tool's scores at point of care. Using an interpretive description approach, Dominique investigated how palliative care professional and patients can collaborate in validation practice and meaningfully use these tools in clinical practice. This session will not be recorded.
